

Introduction

Our project is an investigation into whether dog really is man's best friend, or if this statement is untrue. We surveyed 100 students aged 12 to 18 in our school and these were the results...

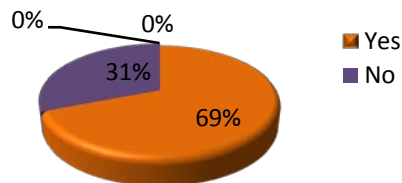

100 students, from 1st year – 6th year, surveyed;

is dog really mans best friend?
your pet statistics...

69% owned a pet, while a remaining 31% did not.

Do you have a pet?

Average number of pets per household

Those who had answered yes then listed the types of pets they owned

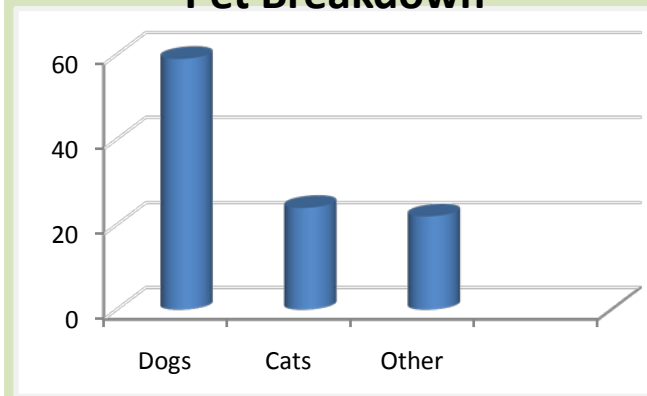

Out of the 22 who owned other pets (horses, rabbits, etc) only 9 said they consider their pets part of the family, the other 13 didn't.

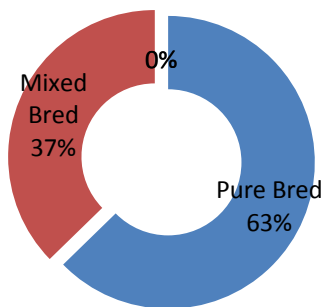

Out of the 59 who own dogs 56 said they considered their dogs part of the family, only 3 didn't.

Conclusion

After doing this project we came to the conclusion that dogs really are man's best friends! We got this conclusion from the fact that out of the 59 people who owned dogs, 56 of them considered their dog(s) part of their family whereas the other 22 pet owners, only 9 considered their pet(s) part of the family. Dogs were also the most popular pet owned by students.
